Call for Papers

Single-topic issue 10(1), April 2022

Topic: Social Education target groups

Editor-in-chief: Lenka Gulová, František Trapl & Lenka Ďulíková

Authors are warmly invited to submit papers for the April issue

Year 10 / Number 1 / April 2022

Through its action, social education has the potential to reach a broad spectrum of diverse target groups. These groups include not just children, adolescents and adults, but particular attention is also focused on elderly groups, in particular in regard to their activation. Another important issue in social education involve groups which are socially disadvantaged, such as the Romani and members of other national and ethnic minorities, as well as, for example, single mothers, parents affected by various pathologies, people in difficult social situations, etc. We focus mainly on prevention, motivation and activation amongst social education target groups, rather than intervention. We therefore cannot interchange social education with the action of social work. This does not, however, reject the possible overlap and co-operation between these disciplines, but we do endeavour to value and underscore different levels of social education work. In regard to social education target groups, we must also bear social education methods in mind. What can we consider the methods of social education, and what is their potential today and in future, what theories are they based on and what role does social education research play here? These are questions which authors may also posit for this call.
